SEEING IN THE DARK: Arielle is a bright, beautiful woman with a successful career. She chooses an appropriate husband and gives birth to a perfect daughter and son, the makings of a secure life. But when these sensible choices have unexpected consequences, Arielle is sent careening down paths of danger, fear and betrayal as she tries to save herself and the people she loves. Set from the mid 1960s through the mid 1990s, the novel explores a woman's personal journey through a time of profound cultural change.

Judith Peck is a sculptor, author and college professor. Peck is author of several non-fiction books: the text, Sculpture as Experience, (Chilton); five books on creative processes: Leap to the Sun: Learning through Dynamic Play (Prentice-Hall); Art & Interaction (Ramapo College of New Jersey), Art Activities for Mind and Imagination; Artistic Crafts; and Smart Starts in the Arts (Imagination Arts Publications); and two children's picture books. She has written three novels, a screenplay, and a collection of short stories. Seeing in the Dark, Arielle's Story is her first published novel. Her books are available at www.iapbooks.com.
